One Motor Value Known to Everyone

Whether they have owned it or not, somewhere, somehow, people have gained the positive impression that the WAGNER MOTOR is a motor among motors, a value among values.

Reviewing all the motors in existence, it is hardly possible to think of another motor in its class of which motor owners and non-owners alike think more highly than they do of the

HORTICULTURAL REPORT FOR MONTH OF JUNE 1923

To the Honorable Board of Supervisors, San Mateo County:

With the co-operation of the State Department of Agriculture to determine, if possible, control of the raspberry diseases of the county and two serious pests, the red spider on the strawberries and the root worm, which is doing much damage to cauliflower, onions, and cabbage, at Colma. Mr. C. E. Scott is working on the first and Mr. T. D. Urbahne on the spider and root worm.

Through the Colma Vegetable Growers Association, I have been given the use of some land and sufficient cauliflower plants for our needs. Mr. Urbahne will return here July 3rd and we intend planting the plants, which will first be treated with several different sprays, to test them for root worm prevention. It is not expected to be able to do any good this season but we hope to be in a position to make some recommendations next planting time.

Inspections of nursery stock in June were 4 shipments of 1857 plants from California and 23 shipments of 2667 plants from eastern points, a total of 68 shipments and 4524 plants.

Respectfully submitted,
A. W. TATE, JR.,
Horticultural Commissioner, San Mateo County.

U. S. INSPECTORS ARE EVER ON THE ALERT

Inspectors of the federal horticultural board of the United State Department of Agriculture are continually on the alert to prevent insect pests from making their way into the United States from foreign countries, often locating them in new and unexpected places for their ways of arrival are numerous. Twice during the month of March one inspector, in cooperation with custom officials, intercepted living larvae of the European corn borer in stalks of broomcorn contained in passenger's baggage. One interception was made from the baggage of a third-class passenger arriving from Italy, whose intention was to take the infested material to Missouri. The second discovery was made by the same inspector when the same pest was found in the baggage of a passenger from Germany.

These fortunate interceptions emphasize very forcibly the need and importance of carefully examining, in co-operation with customs officials, passengers' baggage arriving from various foreign countries. Work of this kind is now carried on by the federal horticultural board at a number of ports of entry, and as funds permit it is purposed to enlarge this phase of the board's activities.

News From Woodside

Having just returned after several weeks spent along the winding course of the Russian river, I am the more convinced that the resident of Woodside has litle excuse for journeying from home at vacation time. Our redwood covered hillsides are as picturesque and our climate as genial as is to be found anywhere in the state.

But for those who must journey away from the super-heated level reaches of the interior valleys, the Russian river region holds many attractions. And not the least of these I think, is that little town called Jenner by the Sea, where the river enters the ocean. Miles of wide clean beach backed by wild-flower covered bluffs, and standing out in the breakers, great rocks, like medieval castles, covered with star fish, sea-urchins and great varieties of sea weeds and mosses. I have seen a good deal of the California coast from San Diego to Crescent City, but have seen no place on the shore line that has greater natural attractions than jenner by the Sea.

HALFMOON BAY SHOWS HOW TO CELEBRATE THE 4TH

When it comes to putting on a real 4th of July celebration Halfmoon Bay picks up the chips. The little sea-side town was the livest spot on the map of the county last Wednesday, when the natal day of the Republic was celebrated with a flurish that left no doubt in the minds of the on-lookers that the people of the coastside know how to barbeque beef, and how to put on a real show. Everything went off according to schedule, excepting the pig; and thereby hangs a tale. The program announced that a pig, well greased, and fattened would be chased by the youths of the town. But when the time came for the pig to appear, behold, there was no pig. Whether the pig got tired of the celebration and went off of his own accord or whether he was helped is not known, but it is said over on the coast that stealing a greased pig is a pretty slick trick.

The absence of the pig, however, did not abate the gayety of the day and a greased pole race, a fat ladies' race and other athletic events served to make the day an enjoyable one. The speech of the day was delivered by District Attorney Franklin Swart. In the evening dancing was enjoyed in the I. D. E. S. hall.

Mrs. Reedy leaned over to close the door, and losing hed balance fell from the car, striking her head on the rocky bank along the road. JOHN A. BRITTON

Occasionally a man of the people comes to great prominence. In doing so it is often necessary to brush someone else aside or climb over his shoulders. Little things are often done which are not wholly dishonest, but it is felt that they must be done to accomplish an end.

John A. Britton who was taken this week was a man of the people who came to a position of great prominence through hard work. He did not find it necessary to push others aside, in truth he helped others to climb with him.

He was an organizer, a developer of power. He was a man that every man could be proud to know. Redwood City can always be proud of the fact that it was the homeplace of a man like John A. Britton. His life should be an inspiration for the boys and young men of the state because he showed what determination, hard work and honesty will accomplish. He helped to make his country a better place in which to live. We regret his passing, but we rejoice that he lived.

A MEMORIAL PARK

Mr. Wilbur Doxsee made a suggestion in last Saturday's Times-Gazette that is worthy of more than passing moment. As one of San Mateo county's boys he went over to Europe with the first American forces and stayed until everything was settled over there. Now as a private citizen of San Mateo county again, he asks that the big tract of timber land on the Pescadero creek near Harrison shall be bought by the county and designated as a memorial park in honor of the boys who will never come home.

We cannot think of a finer sentiment. The fine old redwoods that are thousands of years old will live for thousands of years to come if they are preserved and they will stand as living testimonials of our love and esteem for the boys who fought for us and for the preservation of our homes and forests.

We do not know what progress the committee appointed by the supervisors is making, but we hope that their efforts will be crowned with success. If they are successful we hope that the tract of land may be known as "San Mateo County Memorial Park.

A REAL LEADER

As President Harding comes closer to our section of the country and his speeches are given to us with greater fullness than they have been previously given, we can see that he is a real leader. He states his position and then tells why he has taken that position. He doesn't back or fill, he comes out solidly and squarely and says what he thinks. Sometimes and in some places his thoughts may not be popular, but they are the honest thoughts of an honest man.

President Harding reflects an old fashioned idea of patriotism. He says that he promised to uphold the laws of the land and he believes in keeping his word. He is willing to set an example of being a law-abiding citizen, too.

The people of the country are beginning to believe with the president that a world court would be a fine thing. We should as honest citizens of the best nation in the world, think of the rights and the pleasures and lives of the people who are not so fortunately situated as we are. A world court would help to settle world difficulties and would in a measure prevent the possibility of war.

We believe that history will place Warrren G. Harding as one of the really great presidents. He is not spectacular, he doesn't care for the limelight, but he is honest and capable and willing to let everyone know just what he means.

OUR NATAL DAY

And now we are a year older. We don't feel much different, but we are wiser than we used to be. Wednesday was a great day, a great holiday, a day on which we had a right to crow about what a fine country we are.

Our flag was displayed over all the land and over many homes in many countries. Everyone of us should thank God every day of our lives for our country and for our flag. We are a great nation but we must always desire to remain a great nation, not in material greatness alone, but also in the greatness of our people, as upright, honest, liberty-loving citizens.

The flags that we so proudly displayed can only keep their true significance if the owners respect the things the flags stand for and live as true Americans.

As Franklin K. Lane once said, "The Flag is what you make it." God grant that our personal flags may always be pure and spotless.

ROOSEVELT ON AMERICANISM

It is hard to believe that there is any necessity to warn Americans that, when they seek to model themselves on the lines of other civilizations, they make themselves the butts of all right-thinking men; and yet the necessity certainly exists to give this warning to many of our citizens who pride themselves on their standing in the world of art and letters, or, perchance on what they would style their social leadership in the community. We Americans can only do our allotted task well if we face it steadily and bravely, seeing, but not fearing, the dangers. Above all, we must stand shoulder to shoulder, not asking as to the ancestry or creed of our comrades, but only demanding that they be in very truth Americans, and that we all work together, —heart, hand, and head—for the honor and the greatness of our common country.—Theodore Roosevelt.

SUPERVISORS HOLD SHORT MEETING

A short and rather uneventful meeting was held by the county board of supervisors last Monday. A map of the Winchester tract, a new subdivision, near Atherton, was presented to the board by R. H. Brotherton, representing the Boston Investment Company. A resolution accepting the subdivision, but rejecting the streets was passed by the board on motion of Supervisor Macbain seconded by Supervisor Brown.

A map of Graceland Park, another new subdivision, was presented to the board by Allen Meyenhoffer, for the owner, K. A. Winter. This map was also accepted by the board.

A petition presented by the board of trustees of the San Mateo Union High School district to have the name changed to Peninsula Unidu High School district was read by the clerk, but when the chairman asked if anyone wished to speak concerning it, no one was present to favor it. Horace Amphlett of the San Mateo Times, spoke against the change of name. County Superintendent of Schools, Roy W. Cloud, by whom the petition was presented to the board, then explained that the change of name had been desired because the new building in Burlingame was in the San Mateo school district, and it was because of this fact that some of the people of Burlingame had desired to change the name. An agreement had been made, however, he stated whereby th new school would be called the Burlingame high school. Therefore the change of name was no longer desired. The supervisors denied the petition.

District Attorney Swart rendered an opinion upon the question which was put up to him last month as to the legality of the county expending money to help pay the expenses of sending the drum corps of a certain fraternal order to a convention of that order in the east, the advantage to the county being the advertising it would thereby receive. Swart gave it as his opinion that while the advertising would be for the benefit of the county, that since it was not considered legal for the county to pay the expenses of county officers to and from their conventions, and as the convention in particular was that of an order, and not of a public nature, he considered it beyond the power of the supervisors to expend public funds for this purpose.

Communications were recieved from Timothy Hopkins of Menlo Park and W. J. Martin of South San Francisco, both gentlemen accepting positions on the committee appointed by the board at their last meeting, to report upon the plan of buying tracts of redwood timber land to be used as public parks. Resolutions were received by the board from Redwood Parlor N. S. G. W. and from Bay View Lodge I. O. O. F. heartily endorsing the purchase of land for this purpose.

R. H. Brotherton, representing the Peterson interests, who own the tract of redwood timber which the county is considering taking over, appeared before the board and said that at any time that was convenient with the committee appointed by the board that Mr. Peterson would be glad to meet with the committee and supervisors and arrange some terms. It was therefore decided to hold an adjourned session today and the clerk was instructed to write to the members of the committee inviting them to be present at the meeting today.

Copies of an opinion by Attorney General Webb concerning the expenditure of money by one county for road improvement in another county. The opinion of the Attorney General, while unofficial, holds that one county may spend money for improvement in another county, providing that the improvements are a benefit to the county which is spending the money.

Upon the reading of reissuing insurance policies covering the motorcycles used by traffic officers, the board instructed the clerk to write to the former officers who still have machines, instructing them to turn the motorcycles over to Purchasing Agent Werder.

Following the reading of the reports of the various county officers, Supervisor Francis invited the other members of the board to Halfmoon Bay for the celebration on the 4th of July and also requested permission to close certain streets in Halfmoon Bay during the celebration. The request was granted.

County Assessor D. P. Flynn presented the new assessment rolls, showing the county valuation to be as follows:

South San Francisco	$1,822,890.00
Daly City	854,925.00
San Bruno	857,630.00
Burlingame	3,498,070.00
Hillborough	4,681,850.00
San Mateo	4,020,185.00
Redwood City	1,929,370.00
Total Val. of Cities	$17,664,920.00
First Township	$5,665,850.00
Second Township	3,245,600.00
Third Township	8,120,550.00
Fourth Township	1,912,850.00
Fifth Township	1,125,650.00
Total Val. Townships	$20,070,500.00
Total Val. County	$37,735,420.00
Operative Roll	1,745,650.00
Grand Total	$39,481,070.00

The board then adjourned and reconvened as a board of equalization and accepted the roll as presented by the assessor.

A HISTORY OF SAN MATEO COUNTY; THE BEGINNING OF REDWOOD CITY

The following article concerning the beginning of Redwood City is taken from a history published in 1882, therefore all dates should be considered accordingly.

"Redwood City, the county seat of San Mateo county, is located at the head of navigation of Embarcadero, which is more generally known as Redwood creek, and inland about four miles from the open water of the bay. It is a station of the Southern Pacific Railroad, and distant about twenty-eight miles from San Francisco. The site of this town is on the Rancho de las Pulgas, and during the Spanish-Mexican regime was known throughout the valley as the Embarcadero. The landing was on the creek or slough, near the point where Bridge street crosses it, and for nearly a generation prior to the advent of the American settlers, the few commodities with which the native families kept up an appearance of trade were shipped from this point.

The place owes its growth and present importance to two causes—its natural advantage as a shipping point, and its proximity to the vast forests of redwood timber that formerly covered the slopes of the mountains. In 1851 the settlement of Redwood City began with the erection of a small house by Captain A. Smith on the south side of the creek near the creek. The first local industry offering inducement to settlers was shipbuilding, which was inaugurated in 1851, by G M. Burnam, who built the schooner Redwood, a craft that for many years made trips into the port where she first took water. Following here were the Mary Martin, Caroline Whipple, Hariet and the Dashaway. Several other boats were built in the yards of William Bell, which were in the rear and near the present shop of Hilton and Titus—a draw-bridge across the creek at that time allowing their passage.

A third consideration in the causes that gave an impetus to the settlement of Redwood City was the squatter movement, that began in the year 1852. Under the belief that the Pulgas Ranrho would be declared government land, not less than two hhndred squatters took possession of it during that year. This made some central trading post a necssity, and William Shaw, in 1852, foreseeing the needs of a rapidly increasing population, erected a rough board structure, sixteen by twenty-four feet near the site of the postoffice. This pioneer merchant traded without competition, but we are told that the press of customers was seldom so great that he couldn't find time for a game of cards around the table that stood in the center of the store room for that purpose; that he was not wholey engrossed in thoughts of trade may be gathered from a conversation reported between Shaw and a customer, while the former was engaged in his favorite passtime. The customer inquired the price of bacon and Shaw informed him that if he got it for him it would be twenty-five cents; but if he got it for himself it would be twenty cents a pound. The above mercantile house continued in trade from September until the following January, when George Thatcher and Co. bought our Mr. Shaw and commenced a prosperous business. Charles Livingston, one of the few pioneers of Redwood was connected with this house. After this firm came J. V. Diller, who erected a commodious storehouse out of the timbers of a mill that had done good service in the redwoods at the foot of the mountains.

Twen-five years ago hospitality was publicly dispensed here in a shake shantx, the proprietors of which were Balch and Harry Morse. This establishment at that time hardly attained the dignity of a hotel, as lodgings wede not afforded. Prior to this time there had been a little low buiding on the Horace Haws farm called the Pulgas House. It was ten by fifteen feet, and was kept by Ben Baily, where travelers found lodgings for themselves and food for their horses. In 1853 a Mr. Harris completed the original American House, which occupied the site of the hotel of that name, lately burned. Although this house was accounted at that day a very creditable institution, it was lacking in a great many modern improvements. Its apartments consisted of "upstairs" and "down stairs" simply, and in the former were arranged in barracks fashion (all in one room) the sleeping bunks. This house was the scene of many pleasureable occasions to the inhabitants of the new town, and sometimes was the theatre of riotous demonstrations, at that period not very infrequent in Caliofrnia, of the latter canvassing the returns of the election of 1856, is distinctly remembered by those who witnessed it.

The business of wagon making and blacksmithing, owing to the immense amount of teaming between this point and the mills in the redwoods, became an important industry at an early day and has continued so until the present writing. The business was started by one, George Dyzert, in 1851. He was followed by Smith and Chew and by Chew and Hilton. In 1853 J. M. Allen located at the corner of Main street and the county road. Shipsmithing was a part of the business of some of these concerns, until that industry was abondoned.

In the professions, applicants for patronage made their appearance with customary promptness. Of physicians, the "Dutch Doctor" was the first in the field, and he was soon followed by A. T. McClure, M. D. The deciples of Blackstone, lilensed and anlicensed, were quite numerous. Justices' courts were the only ones held at that time in what is now San Mateo county, and the practitioners, as occasions required, came from the mills, farms and workshops. Mother wit and fluent speech were the chief requisites of the lawyer of that day. There was scarcely a law volume in this part of the county. Charles Livingston was the possessor of a book of forms, a few legal propositions entitled, "Every Man His Own Lawyer," which was always in demand in Redwood when exact justice was sought.

Of clergymen there were none settled here before Rev. J. S. Zolle, in 1861 although there were religious services held here long before that date.

The first school house was a small board shanty erected at the embarcadero through the liberality of a few citizens. The pupils were only found to occupy it, but a short time afterwards a better house was built on a triangular lot at the junction of A street with the railroad; and in a few years the attendance had so increased that two teachers were required and an extra room was fitted up in the basement of the courthouse.

In January 1854, J. M. Mezes, one of the proprietors of the Pulgas Rancho laid out and platted the town of Mezesville. The survey was made by W. W. O'Dwyer and the plat filed for record in San Mateo county, August 1, 1856. By the above name Redwood was known for a number of years, and title deeds to land of the original plat still designate the place as Mezesville.

Although new business had been active and a good many private improvements had been made, Redwood City at the time of the organization of San Mateo county in 1856, did not contain more than one hundred and fifty inhabitants. The pioneers of the purely native population of the town were twin sisters, Mary and Caroline Tyler, children of Peter Tyler, one of the first ship carpenters here.

The first postoffice was kept in the Steinburger house on what is commonly known as the John Hayes property, and Jesse D. Carr was the postmaster until the office was removed to Redwood City in the year 1853, when George Thatcher was appointed postmaster. Besides this there were no postoffices in this part of the county, with the exception of Woodside, where the initial settlement of the county was begun, and where the polling place for Redwood continued until 1853.

With the organization of the county in 1856, and the establishment of the county seat at this place, Redwood, by force of the latter circumstance, if for no other reason, began to increase more rapidly in population and importance. The courts were held in the upper story of Diller's warehouse till 1858, when the court house and jail were erected at a cost of about ten thousand dollars. Redwood became the place of residence of men of learning and culture, schools were well maintained and prosperous, societies were formed, a newspaper (The Gazette) started, and in 1862 the First Congregational church was organized.

On October 16th, 1863, the first passenger train of cars passed through Redwood City on an excursion trip over what then was called the San Francisco and San Jose railroad. Although this was the first opportunity for railroad communication with San Francisco, yet other means had or several years supplied the people of Redwood City with adequate facilities. A part of the time two stage lines had been run between the above points, while the means were ample for transportation and freighting by water.

Until 1867, very little attention had been given to the matter of street improvements, at which time the population became such as to warrant and demand good streets, and a municipal government clothed with authority to effect this object. Accordingly a petition was that year presented to the county court praying that the town of Redwood City might become incorporated under the general laws for the incorporation of towns. The petition was granted and an election held May 11, 1867.

ICE MORE IMPORTANT THAN DIAMONDS TO U. S.

According to the latest news from the African diamond fields, the United States has purchased more diamonds this year than ever before. Several reasons have been advanced to explain why this is true; but whether or not the condition has any real significance is a question.

What is of real importance is the news that more ice is purchased per capita today than five years ago. This fact is worth more than a passing thought. The use of ice as a food preservative is one of the best precautions against many diseases caused by spoiled or contaminated food. Scientists explain that perishable foods deteriorate rapidly at temperatures higher than 50 degrees; and while the usual indications of spoiling are not apparent, the food loses much of its nutritive value. Pure, wholesome food for the growing children of today means strong healthy, capable men and women of tomorrow.

Moreover, the fact that nowadays nearly every family realizes the necessity of using ice the year round, is more indicative of a greater general prosperity and better living conditions that the fact that a few millionaires have purchased diamonds. And while the owners of African daimonds fields are to be congratulated on a bumper year, the various civic organizations, ice producers associations and housewives leagues, which help to educate the public to use ice, are to be congratulated still more.

CLEANERS HAVE BIG FACTORY

The average person would be amazed at the size of The F. Thomas Parisian Dyeing & Cleaning Works, who are now the largest plant in America. It perhaps would appear an easy matter to clean garments, but if one saw the elaborate and complicated system necessary for turning out the work satisfactorily, they would marvel.

We understand from Mr. Walter B. Marcus, the manager for the peninsula branches, that the public are cordially invited to inspect this interesting process, and it is well worth a visit.

The works in San Francisco cover nearly an acre. It consists of dry cleaning, steam cleaning, dyeing, curtain, blanket, and carpet plants and the immense press room where over one hundred pressers are busily employed. The new dry cleaning plant on Jessie street, back of the Tenth street works, has just been completed and equipped at a cost of $150,000. The reputation of this firm has established during the sixty years they have been serving the public is further enhanced by the additional new unit of the works.

Cleaning Without Odor by the F. Thomas Process

Our many years of experience has taught us that it is impossible to do perfect cleaning with cheap, inferior methods. That is why we found it necessary to invest nearly $500,000 in the equipment of a plant and the establishment of an expert organization to do the quality of work demanded by our customers.

With the "F. Thomas Process" we not only remove every particle of dust but we return your garments without that usual disagreeable smell of gasoline. Every drop of gasoline we use in cleaning is redistilled and very highly refined.

Raw gasoline—the kind that you buy for your automobile—is full of heavy oils and unfit for cleaning fabrics. It is little better than ordinary distillate and leaves a sickening "gasoline" smell in your clothes.

NEWS OF MENLO PARK

Many from here attended the funeral obsequies of Miss Genevieve M. Sullivan in San Francisco last Monday. She was a sister of Father W. P. Sullivan at one time pastor of the Church of the Nativity. During his pastorate she was here frequently, singing in the choir and taking part in other church activities. Miss Sullivan was a sweet, loveable young woman, admired by a large circle of friends on the peninsula. She is survived by two sisters, Mrs. M. O'Shaughnessy, Mrs. Matthew V. Brady and two brothers, Father W. P. Sullivan and Frank J. Sullivan. The funeral took place fom St. Mary' cathedral.

Henry Cowell, composer-pianist of Palo Alto, who left recently on a concert trip abroad, was honored in Berlin recently by an invitation to dine with the grandchildren of Felix Mendelssohn, the noted composer. Cowell has been attending the operas in Berlin, and later will give his series of illustrated concerts introducing his own works to audiences in Berlin, Paris and London.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Kimball of Menlo Oaks, at the Palo Alto hospital, a daughter, June 28.

Senator Shortridge delivered the oration at San Jose, his boyhood home and the scene of his youthful dreams, on the Fourth. It was one of his very best efforts. A number of his friends went to the Garden City to hear him.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Bernad of Eureka are here on a visit to Mr. Bernard's parents.

Walter and Arthur Gale of Los Angeles are visiting their parents here. Both young men are prominent oil operators in the south.

Miss Mamie O'Dea of this place and Miss Fanny Casey of San Francisco are spending their vacations at Siegler Hot Springs, Lake county.

James Curtis Murray, a pioneer of San Mateo county, was laid away in Holy Cross cemetery, in the shadows of his boyhood home here on Thursday morning. The requiem mass in the Church of the Nativity was largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends who formed a long cortege in following the remains of the departed pioneer to the burial ground. Mr. Murray was born at the Woodside Dairy, now known as Menlo Oaks, in a building where is now located the beautiful residence of Judge Charles A. Shurtleff, sixty-four years ago. Some time after the family moved to a tract of land back of the J. Henry Meyer home near the Sandhill road. Close by stood the old St. Dennis church and cemetery which was in charge of John Murray, father of the deceased. This was the first church erected in San Mateo county and worshippers came from all parts on Sunday to hear mass usually celebrated by the pioneer priest, the late Father Dempsey. They came on horseback and in stage coaches spending the day in the cooling shade of that romantic place. The church was the gift to the public from the late Dennis Martin, who came across the plains in 1849 with the Donner and Murphy parties. He went direct to the mines accumulating a big fortune; acquired the Los Pulgas grant and in the heyday of his wealth and glory built the little church on the green hillside, equipping it with rare fixtures, golden candlesticks from Rome were placed upon the altar while stained glass windows, works of art, were brought from Belgium. It was a beautiful edifice. Martin lost his fortune and by a strange prank of fate he lies buried in the old cemetery grown over by a crop of wheat, no headstone to mark the last resting place of the old philanthropist, who in the days of his success did not forget the faith of his fathers. When Senator Stanford acquired the property the church was wrecked and the tombstones removed. The land has been farmed ever since.

In this environment J. C. Murray grew to manhood but like many young men with an adventurous spirit did not like the hum drum of farm life and sought Redwood City to apprentice himself to the horse-shoeing trade. He entered the shop of the late James Gunning, at that time one of the most skillful horseshoers in the state. Murray allied himself to the republican party at an early date, and at once became a power in the politics of the county. He never sought any position for himself.

When the Stanford stock farm was at the apex of its glory Mr. Murray took charge of the shoeing department. Here he became known to fame as the man who shod the famous thoroubhbreds that won all the world records on the turf. Senator Stanford would often come to the shop and for hours would watch Murray skillfully prepare his fleet footed horses for the races. Mr. Murray shod Palo Alto that held the world's record for a number of years and other record breakers that brought fame and fortune to the stock farm. Every turfman in the country knew Murray and all admired him for his skill.

After the death of Stanford the stock farm dwindled and soon Mrs. Stanford sold the famous racers to eastern capitalists. Mr. Murray established a business in Palo Alto and prospered until the advent of the automobile when horseshoing became unprofitable.

During the war Mr. Murray was an instructor for the government at the Remount Station near the base hospital, a position he held until the end of the war, since which time he has lived quietly in Menlo Park. A year ago he was taken ill and lingered until last Monday afternoon when death relieved him of his suffering. Mr. Murray was a genial, wholesouled man, loved and liked for his frankness of manner and happy companionship. He possessed a splendid retentive memory, which he developed by reading. Mr. Murray was a veritable encyclopedia of knowledge of early events of San Mateo county. He could almost accurately tell of every event in the history of the peninsula for the past fifty years. He knew the history of the county like a book and was acquainted with all the political characters of a generation ago.

The deceased besides his widow is survived by two sons, John and George Murray, and two brothers, W. J. and J. J. Murray, all of Menlo Park.

WAR DEPARTMENT RULES FOR PROPER USE OF THE FLAG

Lessons on the proper manner in which to display the United States flag were given during a recent convention at the national capital. Many people, with the best of intentions, use the uag in an improper manner for decorative purposes. Protests from patriotic societies brought out the fact that the War department has published a small bullem giving a few rules on the subject, not based upon law but upon fundamental rules of heraldry and good taste. Among these rules are the following:

"The union of the flag is the honor point; the right arm is the sword arm and therefore the place of honor. The staff edge of the flag is the heraldic dexter or right edge. When the national flag is carried, as in a procession, with another flag or flags, the place of the national flag is on the right, i. e., the flag's own right. When the national flag and another flag are displayed together, as against a wall from crossed staffs, the national flag should be on the right, the flag's own right, i. e., the observer's left, and its staff should be in front of the staff of the other flag. When a number of flags are grouped and displayed from staffs the national flag should be in the center or at the highest point of the group. When the national flag is hung either horizontally or vertically against a wall the union should be uppermost and to the flag's own right, i. e., to the observer's left. When displayed from a staff projecting horizontally or at an angle from a window sill or the front of a building, the same rules should be observed; the union should go clear to the "truck", as the peak of the staff is called unless the flag be at half staff. When the flag is suspended between buildings so as to hang over the middle of the street, a simple rule is to hang the union to the north in an east and west street or to the east in a north and south street.

"International usage forbids the display of the flag of one nation above that of any nation in time of peace. The national flag, when not flown from a staff should always be hung flat, whether indoors or out. It should not be festooned over doorways or arches nor tied in a bowknot nor fashioned into a rosette. When used on a rostrum it should be displayed above and behind the speaker's desk. It should never be used to cover the speaker's desk or to drape over the front of the platform. For this latter purpose as well as for decoration in general bunting of the national colors should be used, and since the blue union of the flag always goes to the honor point, the colors should be arranged with the blue above, the white in the middle, and the red below. Under no circumstances should the flag be draped over chairs or benches, nor should any object or emblem of any kind be placed above or upon it, nor should it be hung where it can be easily contaminated or soiled. No lettering of any kind should ever be placed upon the flag. It should not be used as a portion of a woman's costume or of a man's athletic clothing. A very common misuse of the flag is the practice of embroidering the flag on cushions and handkerchiefs, and the printing of the flag on paper napkins.

"On Memorial Day the national flag is dispalyed at half staff from sunrise until noon and at full staff from noon until sunset. When flown at half staff the flag is always first hoisted to the peak, the honor point, and then slowly lowered to half-staff position, but before lowering the flag for the day it is raised again to the head of the staff. When flags are used in connection with the unveiling of a statue or monument they should not be allowed to fall to the ground, but should be carried aloft. When the national flag is used on a bier or casket, the union should be placed at the head of the casket and over the left shoulder of the soldier. The flag should not be lowered into the grave."

Seems strange, but you can't rise above your station by becoming inflated in your station.

Her face may be her fortune, but the wise young man won't permit her to use it to dig out of his pocket.

You'd think the "tired business man" would go home instead of to a show when he gets that way.

A bear of a clerk can ruin a whale of a store.

TO WED IN SAN FRANCISCO

A marriage license was issued this week in San Francisco to Miss Elizabeth Gillespie, youngest daughter of Mrs. Carrie E. Gillespie of 527 Roosevelt avenue and to Paul Miller of San Francisco. The wedding of the young couple will take place in a San Francisco Episcopal church today. Miss Gillespie is well known in Redwood City, having graduated from the local grammar school and attended the Sequoia high school for two years. For some time Miss Gillespie has been employed by the Pecific Title Insurance Company at their local office. Mr. Miller is a traveling auditor, working out of the office of the State Comptroller.

What is a Watt?

A WATT is a unit of measurement, just as is a gallon, a pound or a yard. Suppose you used electricity instead of water in your garden hose. You would then think of the current as amperes, and of the pressure as volts. The current (in amperes) multiplied by the pressure (in volts) gives the power in watts.

One thousand watts for one hour equals one Kilowatt Hour, which is the way you buy electricity.

This advertisement is one in a series explaining such terms as watt, volt, ampere, etc. Read each advertisement carefully.
